(compared to those eating school lunch)

■ BREAKFAST ■ LUNCH ◀▶ COUNTYWIDE COMPARISON

Percentage of FRPM-Enrolled Kids Eating AFTERSCHOOL & SUMMER MEALS

■ DISTRICT + COMMUNITY ORGS ▲ COUNTYWIDE COMPARISON

SCHOOL BREAKFAST

- ◆ Cajon Valley Union School District (CVUSD) has implemented CEP or Provision 2 at 15 of the 16 schools that are eligible and could be serving universal free meals, if they are not already. The remaining charter school, EJE Middle Academy, is eligible for P2.
- ◆ CVUSD is providing Breakfast After the Bell (BAB) at 5 of 19 elementary schools and 1 of 6 middle schools. Starting Breakfast After the Bell at additional schools could raise breakfast participation closer to lunch participation, particularly at the middle schools.

AFTERSCHOOL & SUMMER MEALS

- ◆ CVUSD Child Nutrition Services provides afterschool snacks through the National School Lunch Program. If CVUSD became a CACFP sponsor, they could provide the more substantial supper meal in addition to (or in place of) a snack.
- ◆ El Cajon Branch Library currently serves summer meals and could also add afterschool supper during the school year, if a suitable CACFP sponsor and food vendor can be identified.
- ◆ There is an opportunity to provide CACFP snack and/or supper for afterschool programs offered at City of El Cajon Recreation Centers.
- ◆ The library and recreation centers may need a sponsor and vendor other than the school district, as it can be challenging for districts to deliver meals off-site during the school year.

MISSED SUMMER LUNCH*

Federal Dollars Untapped: $1,025,712

- ◆ CVUSD provides summer meals at 10 school sites. Summer meal participation appears quite low, however, children may be eating summer meals provided by Grossmont Union High School District at 9 additional sites within the Cajon Valley district boundary, including Boys & Girls Club of East County and McGrath Family YMCA. Cross-promotion targeting both Cajon Valley and Grossmont Union students could help increase participation among all families within the district.
